MRS. J. R. WARNER PASSES AT VANCOUVER

The many friends of Mrs. J. R. Warner were shocked last week to learn of her passing in Vancouver, to where along with Mr. Warner and her daughter Violet she had but recently journeyed for a holiday in hope to benefit her health. Her death severs another link in the ranks of early Pass residents.

Following is from a Vancouver, BC, exchange obituary notices:

On July 29, 1947, in hospital, Annie Rebecca, beloved wife of James Robert Warner of Blairmore, Alberta, in her 66th year; beloved mother of Mrs. Violet Houghton, Vancouver, and Mrs. Florence McDonald, Coleen, Alberta; four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. She was a member of Rebekah Lodge, Crowley No. 66, IOOF, and Daughters of the Empire, Blairmore, Alberta. Funeral services were held Thursday, July 31, at 2 p.m. in the Dunn & Thompson Chapel, 10th Avenue and Cambie Street, Rev. J. W. Smith officiating, under auspices of the Rebekah Transient Sick Visiting Committee. Interment was in Ocean View Burial Park.

COWLEY HAPPENINGS

Considerable improvement was made in the village this week by ditching the front street and by grubbing and filling in the low places in the back street.

Mrs. C. B. Blacksturn and her daughter Sylvia and son Lauris of Pincher Creek paid a visit to Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Murphy the early part of the week.

Mrs. Harold Snyder and her small daughter Joan of Red Deer left Tuesday to return home following a twoweek visit with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stainsby, and while enroute Mrs. Snyder will stop over for a few days' visit with her sister, Mrs. Lawrence Russell and family, at Graman.

Mrs. Cruckshank and her two daughters, Dawn and June, of Vancouver, BC, are renewing old friendships here this week while on their summer vacation.

W. T. Eddy of Burmis was a business visitor here Tuesday. In spite of Mr. Eddy's 85 years he is hale and hearty and was sitting behind the wheel of a truck driving with all the confidence of a young man.

Mrs. M. A. Murphy visited with friends in Pincher Creek over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bent returned Monday from a fortnight's visit at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bent, at Drumheller and during their sojourn the party spent a few days at Sylvan Lake, rounding a full and most enjoyable holiday.

CROW'S NEST PASS SLAVONIC PEOPLE HOLD SUCCESS- FUL FESTIVAL

A very successful festival was staged by the Slavonic people of Crow's Nest Pass on Saturday, August 9, at Blairmore Arena. The program consisted of Czechoslovak, Polish, Russian and Ukrainian folk songs, music and dances, as well as a very brilliant display of physical training drills and acrobatics.

An outstanding feature of the festival was the massed choir consisting of singers from all Pass towns, accompanied by the Ukrainian string orchestra of Calgary. The choir formed a very pretty picture as they stood dressed in various Slavonic costumes and very ably rendered their selections of Slavonic folk songs.

The dancers added great color and gaiety to the program as they performed the Ukrainian Katerky, the Polish Krakowka and the Slovak Valcek.

From time to time sportmen appeared on the program with their smart display of drills and acrobatics. This helped to give variety and interest to the very splendid programme.

The hearts of the audience was captivated by the Budinov Sisters' rendition of two Czech songs.

Guest soloists, Ante Skulski and Olga Smith of Calgary made a very fine impression on the audience who applauded their selections with enthusiasm.

Honored guests at the festival were N. Serov of the Soviet Embassy, Dr. Karach of Toronto, Mayors F. Abousayad and E. Williams, J. Stokaluk of district 18 U. M. W. of A., J. Klebanowski of Edmonton, representing the Ukrainian organizations and J. Jakob representing the Czechoslovak organizations in Calgary.

Councillor W. Jallep of Blairmore was chairman of the festival and did a splendid job of keeping the program running smoothly.

The festival culminated in a mass picnic at Coleman on Sunday August 10, when a large crowd gathered at the rodeo grounds to be treated to some of the festival concert program. Favorable weather permitted the people to enjoy the program and to mingle with their honored guests and acquaintances, many of whom came from as far as Spokane to attend the festival.

A great deal of credit is to be given the people who worked so hard to put on this festival, which was the biggest event to take place in the history of the Crows Nest Pass.

August 6. Both mother and infant are doing well.

Mrs. Edward Perreault entertained the Ladies Aid of the United church at their regular meeting at her home Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 6. The work in connection in caring for the Cowley cemetery was the principal item of interest.

Quite a heavy frost fell here on the night of August 6. This is a bit unusual at this time of year and even though ice showed in places, strange as it would appear no damage seems to have been done.

A friendly party was held for Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Bundy in the Masonic hall. Friday night, August 8, while a large number of friends gathered to make their home on their leave-taking to their home in Pincher Station to where Mr. Bundy has been transferred as station agent. Mr. William Cochrane was chairman for the occasion. After a tasty luncheon, the honor guests were presented with a handsome silver tray.

A motorist, who was picked up unconscious after a smash, opened his eyes as he was being carried into a nearby garage. He began to kick and struggle. When he was afterwards asked the reason, he explained that the first thing he saw was a "Shell" sign and "some fool was standing in front of the 'S.'

VETERANS' HOUSING

In the last six months I have travelled and seen the housing situation from Sydney to Victoria. I talk with Prime Minister King and the premier who wheels the cement up to the hand to be foundations. I have yet to find one who is not in sympathy with the veterans' housing problem.

But sympathy is a poor substitute for a roof overhead. It doesn't help the situation any when you are late for work in the morning, and the kids from the room next door are holding up the communal bathroom. It does improve things when you have to fork over about a third of your income to a grafting shyster each month for bedbug infested two rooms.

Sympathy is damned. There has been far too much maudlin sentiment over the problem and not enough realistic action.

Who is to blame?

I blame the federal government. Not for lack of interest but for indecision and lack of direction in handling the situation. More than three years ago they were warned about the housing conditions by the Legion and they didn't listen, offered the same solutions, innumerable surveys, new-reached targets and a shrug of the shoulder "it's beyond us" attitude.

I blame the provincial government. Who I see to have ditched the problem entirely as one not of their responsibility.

I blame the many municipalities who have refused to co-operate with the government and the veterans' demands. Major General Hugh Young, head of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, told me recently that there are still many municipalities where they refuse to even accept War-time houses. This in spite of the offer to veterans of four and six roomed houses for as low as $27 a month.

A short time ago a delegation of veterans from a small Quebec town came to see me stating that they could buy from War Assets a number of abandoned Army huts which were in good condition and they could live in them.

They were having difficulty with the local mayor and his councillors who refused to co-operate. We managed to get them all together at the Dufferin County to thrash the matter over. One of the senior councillors, evidently the strong character of the council, and a landowner, explained to us that the veterans could not live in this abandoned army property because it was against their civic by-laws.

We patiently pointed out how the by-law in this case could be circumvented. He was adamant in claiming that the by-law could not be changed, neither could it be added to nor changed. When we realized that the character was just being plain dirty so we got tough and again showed him how the by-law could be changed.

Then he arose, shook his fist in the air and shouted, "If this by-law is changed then I will have another one made to offset it."

The party broke up. We are still plugging for these vets. But it's a tough piece of meat to digest and you need sharp teeth.

The contractors and private house-builders who absolutely refuse to accept in part any responsibility for remedying the situation. I know of numerous cases whereby the Central Mortgage people have offered to finance the contractors and then buy the houses back from them allowing them a straight ten per cent profit cash.

The contractors refused, intimating that the ten per cent was only peanuts in comparison to what they could make on the private market.

The contractors also said in any newspaper and the prices placed at eight thousand and work up to twenty-five thousand dollars. It just means that a veteran getting re-established hasn't a chance in Hades to buy-out.

Let's quit playing Alphonse and Gaston with the veterans' housing problem, roll up a few sleeves and do a little down-to-earth handling of the situation.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. J. R. Warner and family wish to extend their sincere thanks to the many friends who were so thoughtful and kind during Mrs. Warner's long illness, especially Dr. Stewart and Nurse Wilcox for untiring attention; and the many cards of sympathy and floral tributes in their bereavement.

driving up the wage scale and in return not giving an honest day's work. Nobody thinks that a skilled man should not be paid well for his work. But again the buyer of the house should be made to realize with the burden of having to pay high wages for the work of a man who is entirely unskilled and never served any apprenticeship or passed a trades test.

Neither is it deemed wise for a bricklayer to be restricted by his union for the number of bricks he can lay in a day, or a painter to be compelled to use only a certain kind of paint.

I blame the people of Canada who in a free country tolerate these conditions, knowing full well that the veterans to whom they owe at least the opportunity to get re-established are suffering.

If people refuse to buy these expensive houses which in many cases puts a mortgage around their necks, that they will rue in years to come if they ever have to sell. And when over the land expensive houses can now be bought at any time for a price, and hundreds of bowling alleys, cinemas, dance halls etc., are built up with no scarcity of building supplies.

I blame the labor unions for not doing their duty to the veterans.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

GAMBLER'S LUCK

By JOHN ROWLEY

SOME there are who are dead set against gambling and Ella May Thompson was one of these. And gambling was the one thing which Ella May and Ed Ferguson differed on.

It was Saturday night again and Ella May was in her small room on the second floor of her Aunt's house fixing her long blonde hair in preparation for her weekly date with Ed Ferguson, who worked at the drug store. Ella May was a large woman and in most things a sensible one. Ed Ferguson had been coming to see her every week now for more than a year and he hadn't progressed any further than he had the first night. Perhaps it was because he lacked imagination... or perhaps he was merely cautious!

Whatever the case Ella May had reached the point where she meant business. She had made up her mind it would be time to marry Ed first and have him off his hands afterwards. Ella May was a woman with a great deal of faith in herself.

She gave her hair one last little pat and stood up as the voice of her Aunt drifted up from below. "Ed's here," she called. "Are you most ready?"

Ella May started down the stairs by way of an answer. She could tell without seeing it exactly how the parlour would be. It was a large room which was kept locked except when Ed Ferguson... or the pastor called.

Ed would be sitting nervously on the very edge of the large, brown hair stuffed sofa. His hat would be on his knee and his hair would be slicked back and parted at the exact centre. He would be smiling his face and the back of his neck and part of his ears would be quite red. Ed just never had got used to being with women.

It was as she had foreseen. Ella May saw him about large white teeth. "Hello, Ed," she said. "Nice evening, isn't it?"

Ed said: "Yes" which was part of the formula also.

"Well, I guess I'm about ready," Ed said next. Ed stood up, set his consciousness in his Sunday clothes and put on his coat. Then left the house thus, walking very slowly and carefully until they reached the main street... for all the neighbours would be out on their verandas to see. Ed Ferguson and Ella May Thompson go by.

They went into the Bijou theatre and saw the usual movie and then went into the small restaurant run by Joe Murphy and had supper... and this was the time Ella May had been waiting for.

They had got down to their coffee and Ed was his usual talkative self, answering: "Uh uh well, I declare!" and other equally responsive remarks.

Ella May's attempts at conversation were few.

Finally Ella May as if in fun spun a penny on the table. She watched Ed narrowly as the coin stopped and fell. "Heads," she said. She tried it again and that time it came up tails. Ed's eyes had followed the coin as it spun and Ella May struck while the iron was hot. "Let's match while pennies," Ella May said.

Ed Ferguson looked interested at that. He loved to gamble... it was in fact, almost a mania with him... anything at all from poker to matching pennies. It was all the same to Ed.

"I thought you were against it," he told her.

Ella May laughed. "I am," she said. "But it won't hurt to match a few pennies."

Ed guessed it wouldn't... besides, it was something new to his life. They matched for pennies and finally Ella May brought up the question of their future. She had broached the subject many times before and always Ed had been evasive. This time was no different.

"You can't say," he told her. "I ain't ready to get hitched yet. It's something a man's got to think out... there's no need to be in a hurry."

Ella May thought that a year wasn't very hasty, but she kept that opinion to herself. "How about tossing a coin?" she said. "I'll get married at once. Tails, we wait."

Ed said: "Why, I don't know about that."

"Let's do it," Ella May coaxed. "I thought you were a gambler."

"We-eell, all right," Ed said finally. "If you want to, we'll be puttin' it up to others at any rate."

Ella May said: "I've got a bigger coin, we'll use that." She took a half dollar from her purse and held it in her hand. "Heads," she said. "And we'll get married next week. Tails, and I'll wait 'till you're ready."

Ed nodded. "All right," he told her. "It's a deal!"

A grinning waiter was asked to toss the coin. It lit on the table, rolled against the side of a plate and at last came to rest. Ed leaned forward and said: "Heads!"

Ella May picked up the coin and dropped it back into her purse. "Looks like that settled it," she remarked.

Ed had an odd expression on his face. "I'm not a gambler," he said, "but I'm not ready to go home. Then I walked back slowly and on the steps before she went inside, Ella May let him kiss her. They stood for a moment together and Ella May said: "And after we're married," she said, "we'll get along." "No more gambling, Ella," he told her.

Ella May was more than a puzzle as he left.

Up in her room Ella May threw herself on her bed happily. At last the decision had been made. She took off her coat and lay down and fell asleep about it. Instead she got up and got the half dollar from her purse and flicked it into the air. She smiled as it landed back on the bed.

She was still smiling when she turned it over and looked at the 'head' on the other side. No... Ella May Thompson didn't believe in gambling!

U.S. To Test Machine That Cures Ailments

WASHINGTON—The Government shortly will test a German machine whose inventors claim a variety of ailments — including asthma and migraine headaches — with ionized air.

Migraine heretofore has resisted nearly all attempts to alleviate it, and United States officials are skeptical of the German claims.

The machine, in a state of disrepair, was brought here from the University of Pennsylvania medical school after the war. It is called a "unipolar ionized air apparatus."

It heats in a tube of magnesium which, when heated to incandescence, gives off electrically charged particles which are picked up by an air stream shot past the tube. The patient inhales the ionized air through a special mask.

A German professor named H. Lampert said the machine relieved high blood pressure, asthma, tension angina, pectoris, vasomotor disturbances during the climacteric, weather sensitiveness in persons suffering from muscular rheumatism, sciatica pains and climate allergy.

He said of those qualified have been hard to ameliorate with other treatments.

The machine was brought here by the Commerce Department's Office of Technical Services. Charles E. Ross, chief of the OTS medical and pharmaceutical division, said that after repairs are made, the device will be put into service at one of the universities here.

Reed was dubious about the machine's value and said OTS would not publicize it until after the tests.

No commercial data has been obtained, he said, from the German claimants. "As it stands, the ionized air treatment is to the best of our knowledge an unsupported claim without scientific validation and possibly on the same level as advertising by certain charlatans."

Michael Swangard of the Commerce Department's technical intelligence division said the inventors claimed 30,000 persons were treated with ionized air in Germany between 1930 and 1945.

In San Francisco Lampert was especially emphatic about the benefits of ionized air for persons suffering from chronic purulent sinus infection, hay fever and asthma.

SYDNEY, Australia.—A talented Australian woman made nearly all the floral decorations for the hats worn by Queen Elizabeth and the two Princesses during their tour of South Africa.

Royal milliner Aage Thaarup, described the flower as "beautiful and interesting", and placed large orders with the maker whose headquarters is a small workshop in a Sydney building.

She is assisted by her husband, and between them they supplied all the floral trimmings for hats worn by the Duchess of Gloucester during her stay.

One of the special decorations recently sent to London for the Queen was a creation called "chanticleer" in the form of an inverted rooster's tail in the colors of a vivid Rosella parrot.

STRESS COMPLETION OF ALBERTA ROAD PLANS

Importance of the provincial authorities ensuring the completion of the 1947 road program this year is being emphasized by officials of the Alberta Motor Association. With the steadily increasing demands of the motor tourist industry, the need for improved roads is more vital than ever. Also, it is noted that general traffic is demanding better secondary and market as well as main roads.

Some concern was felt lately with the provincial government announced that a shortage of asphalt might affect the completion of its $8,000,000 hard surfacing program.

To remedy the situation, provincial officials proposed to divert supplies from some projects to others where the shortage was more acute. A conference was held with representatives of oil companies in Calgary with a view to securing an increased output of asphalt.

Hon. W. A. Fellow, minister of public works, stated that unless greater supplies of asphalt were forthcoming, there might be a serious delay in the completion of the 1947 road program.

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

by Don Graham

Invariably, the man who is most eager to learn succeeds most rapidly.

Obviously, then, it is advisable to use all available means of learning more about our jobs.

Experience is the greatest teacher. Books and lectures are great help. But few realize how much we can learn by observing and talking to people.

The people who can be of most value to us in this way are those who have made, or are making, their mark in this world. From their ideas, experience and methods valuable information can be gleaned. It is usually easy, I find, to get these people to respond wholeheartedly when asked intelligent questions.

No one should feel that they are humbling themselves by seeking to learn from others. No one can know all the answers.

But those who know most are usually those who are always open-minded and trying to learn more from others.

Over 4,000,000 Canadians have learned that Life Insurance provides security for themselves and their families. And because no other form of investment can meet this need, the number of life insurance policyholders grows greater yearly.

THE LEDUC OIL FIELD

There can now be no doubt that an important new Canadian oil field has been discovered near Leduc, 16 miles south of Edmonton, according to a story appearing in the current issue of the Imperial Oil Review. The article describes Imperial's long exploration program leading up to Leduc and developments since the discovery well came in Feb. 13.

Since the Review went to press another well has come in. Imperial now has five producing oil wells and one shallow gas well in the Leduc area; three other wells are drilling, one of which may show results very soon; and locations have been set or tentatively selected for a further three to bring the total up to 12 wells. Other companies are drilling some 13 wells.

"Leduc is at least a partial answer to the problem of supply and demand even as it stands; time and energy will determine the extent of its contribution," the Review states.

The finding of the new field comes at a time when consumption of petroleum products in Canada is reaching an all-time high and total production of crude oil from other sources is falling. Prairie refineries in 1946 could only obtain about their requirements from domestic production; the rest had to be imported from fields as far distant as east Texas and Louisiana with heavy transportation costs automatically reflected in the price of the finished products.

The importance of the Leduc find is emphasized by H. H. Hewittson, president of Imperial Oil Ltd., who said that an increased production of oil in Canada would be good for all segments of the national economy.

"It would enlarge the national income and, in the course of time, with production at a sufficient level, it would mean also a subsequent reduction in the cost of petroleum products to consumers on the prairies," he stated.

The Leduc discovery is the result of an orderly exploration program by Imperial Oil which began in 1919 and which since 1939 has called for an expenditure of $16,500,000. After Leduc No. 1 came into production, the company intensified drilling operations to find out if the discovery well was merely an isolated performer or if a new oil field had been located.

Wells were drilled a mile and a half to the northeast, a mile south, and a mile west of the discovery. All have come in as good producers with Leduc No. 2 and Leduc No. 3 creating Alberta oil history when they both "blew in" on the same day, May 21.

Leduc No. 4 followed on June 7 and the Review states: "once you have drilled four wells and found production in all of them, the exploratory phase is over and you are in the stages of development, hence we now speak, with due caution, of the 'Leduc Oil Field'."

The fifth well came in on July 21. Production from each of the first five wells roughly averages from 175 to 200 barrels per day. The oil was encountered between 5,000 and 5,400 feet, and is of excellent quality, being of 39 to 40 gravity.

The magazine also lists other Imperial drilling projects underway in territory adjoining the new field.

"There is the possibility of expansion," the Review says. "Leduc may have its counterpart in other areas of hidden Devonian strata."

LONE SHIELING

Cape Breton Highlands National Park, Nova Scotia, Canada.

LONE SHIELING UNVEILED—Chief Flora, the McLeod of McLeod from the Isle of Skye in Scotland, unveiled the "Lone Shieling" on July 29 in Cape Breton Highlands National Park, Nova Scotia, and Hon. A. L. MacDonald, Premier of Nova Scotia, delivered the principal address.

Among the distinguished guests present were John M. Campbell, M.L.A., M. H. MacKinnon, M.L.A., John MacIntosh, and members of the MacIntosh family.

"Lone Shielings" patterned after the style of a Scottish shieling or bothy (a shepherd's hut or shelter-tent) may still be found in parts of the Scottish Highlands and adjacent islands.

The idea of the "Lone Shieling" had its beginning in the will of Professor MacIntosh, of Dalhousie University, who bequeathed to the Provincial Government of Nova Scotia an area of approximately 100 acres adjacent to the Cabot Trail in its vicinity or Pleasant Bay. The will stipulated that if the area should be included in the proposed national park a "Lone Shieling" should be erected on the property.

When Cape Breton Highlands National Park was established in 1936, the area bequeathed by Professor MacIntosh was included, and his wish to have a "Lone Shieling" erected thereon has thus been carried out—H.C.W.

Canada's Health Problem

AMONG THE MANY PROBLEMS which have had to be faced in Canada in this post-war period, is the critical shortage of medical facilities throughout the country. Recent reports have shown that at present there is urgent need for 27,000 more hospital beds in Canada and that the services of 9,000 additional nurses are needed. There is also a shortage of doctors. All this means that there is no room for Canadians who are ill and are receiving adequate care because of the lack of hospital beds, nurses, and doctors. The situation appeared to grow acute during the war, and to have failed to right itself since. Surveys have shown that the problem is not confined to any one section of the country, but is general all across Canada, and it is obviously a matter of national interest to plan some action to improve the situation.

Is A Need For Prompt Action

The federal Department of Health and the Health League of Canada have both shown interest and concern over the present inadequate health services throughout the Dominion and have made efforts to awaken the public to the need for prompt attention to the problem. At the recent meeting of the Health League, held in Montreal, Dr. Gordon Bates, general director stressed the national aspect of health problems, pointing out that it is in the interests of the country as a whole, to have a high standard of health in each community. As an example of this need, Dr. Bates pointed out that with the modern means of transportation, communicable diseases could spread rapidly from place to place, if proper controls were not in effect in all parts of the country.

Much Depends Upon Health

The members of the Health League were also told that at the present time the best record for health in the British Empire is held by New Zealand but that there was no reason why, by united action, Canada's record could not become the best in the world. Public support, both moral and financial will be needed to build up the deficiency in hospital accommodation and this is indeed an important factor in bringing health services here up to an adequate standard. The lack of doctors and nurses is likewise serious, and public encouragement should also be given to the extension of training facilities and perhaps the addition of further inducements to young people to enter these professions. A great deal of a nation's progress depends upon the physical well-being of its people and Canada's health problem should not be allowed to grow more acute.

They're Drifting Away From The Prairies

(Editorial in The Calgary Herald)

In 1941, the census-takers of the Canadian government placed Alberta's population at 790,198. In 1946, the census-takers placed Alberta's population at 803,330—a gain of slightly over 7,000.

In 1941, the census-takers placed Alberta's population at 895,992. In 1946, they placed Manitoba's population at 837,688—a loss of more than 63,000.

In 1941, the census-takers placed Manitoba's population at 729,774. In 1946, they placed Manitoba's population at 726,923—a loss of nearly 3,000.

On paper, it looks as though Alberta, along with the three prairie provinces, gained population during the war. But it must be recalled that in the five-year interval between the 1941 census and that of 1946, birth exceeded death in the prairies by about 60,000. In other words, Alberta actually lost something like 63,000 citizens during the war years. What the other two prairie provinces have lost, when natural increase is taken into account, may be imagined.

For the first time in memory, the prairie provinces are losing population. Those are losing proportionately, many more of their younger citizens. In fact, the percentage of loss in the age groups 15 to 30 is of disturbing proportions.

Why are the prairies losing their

DIAMOND SOLD FOR $15,000

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana.—A rough diamond weighing 49½ carats found near the Meamau river brought $15,000, the highest price ever recorded in British Guiana for a stone. It was recovered in a figure for 1946 released here. The report showed diamond production last year was 30,957 carats—more than double 1945's output. This was the first substantial increase since production started to decline in this colony in 1923.

Bring German Scientists To Help Production

OTTAWA.—More jobs for more Canadians together with development of new and improvement of old products can be said to be the main objective of the Government in the Government's decision to bring a limited number of German scientists and technicians to Canada.

At the moment, the Government doesn't contemplate bringing more than 15 over-all experts and about 300 specialists have applied to date to dozen different departments for permission to come, the Toronto Financial Post learned recently.

As things now stand, the chances of 300 coming are slim. In the first place, government policy requires that a move to bring in technicians and scientists must be initiated on this side by a Canadian firm or industry.

Secondly, such a firm or industry must demonstrate to the Government's satisfaction that the special skills required of the requested German cannot be obtained here. And in addition, that bringing him over will mean jobs for Canadians or improved or new products.

Here are some of the direct results expected from the transfer of the 14 scheduled to come sometime this summer:

1. At least 1,000 new jobs.
2. At least two and perhaps three new plants.
3. At least two new products, an improvement on a third, and a new process.

One of the plants will probably be built in the Montreal area; another somewhere in Ontario. The Post understands the Montreal plant will make a special type of pliers previously manufactured in Germany.

An allied plant producing the pliers factory out of business. The German owner-engineer-designer couldn't get his plant started after the war so a Montreal firm which had been importing the pliers before the war decided to take over the pliers-making business if the German could be brought over to run it.

The Department of Trade and Commerce agreed this case met government requirements. Now, unless there's a last-minute hitch, this will be one of the first four to come.

FUNNY AND OTHERWISE

"I had an awful headache last night."

"Yes, I saw you with her."

Sign in a country restaurant: "Our steak is too tough for you to eat; this is no place for weaklings."

After getting married to his late secretary, he remarked:

"Well, my dear, I suppose I must get some one to take your place in the office."

"I've been thinking of that," responded the bride: "My cousin is just leaving school."

"What's her name?"

"John Henry Briggs," said the bride sweetly.

As the old lady lay peacefully among the 18th green of the public golf course a golf ball suddenly struck the ground quite near. Her pet dog at once ran forward and seized it.

A moment later the golfer, red face with rage, came up, waving a club and shouting indignantly.

"Put the ball down, Fido," said the old lady sweetly. "It's the kind gentleman to knock it off for you again."

Two cyclists pulled up for the night at a hotel.

"Well, I think," said the host, "that you'll have a comfortable night. It's a feather bed."

At two o'clock in the morning one of the cyclists roused his companion.

"Change places with me, Dick," he groaned. "It's my turn to lie on the feather."

He was a very good barber, but his spelling was unsound. On the wall of his shop was a card bearing the words, "Hair Cutting, 8d; Singing, 10d." When young Perival drifted in he spoke:

"Short at the back and round the ears, please," he piped, seating himself in the chair. "And you can give me a couple of verses and chorus of 'Roll Out the Barrel'."

Mother was slow to comprehend what seemed so perfectly clear to little Sue. The pride of the family was talking about a "federer".

"A 'federer'?" mother questioned.

"Why, you know, Mummy," patiently explained Sue; "it's a fedder from a chicken."

EIRE HOUSEWIVES FIND BACON SCARCE

DUBLIN.—Housewives in Eire find bacon scarce and dear... Few droves of pigs are seen in the streets of Irish towns and villages<sup>2</sup> and the men in the bacon factories are wondering how long they will have their jobs.

There are signs of the decline of Eire's bacon industry. After years of price disturbances, feed shortages during the war brought a 60 per cent. cut in the country's hog population.

In 1940 farmers produced 1,227,403 pigs for market. In the year which ended April 1, 1946 the number had fallen to 645,411 and prices had more than trebled.

The curers complain bitterly that there are plenty of people who will pay more than they can afford, to cure the meat illegally and sell it privately at fantastic prices; and the pork butchers, with lower heads, are using half the pigs in the country.

Now the government is reported considering new legislation to put the hog and bacon industry back on the map. The former is to be central, government-organized, purchasing machinery to keep hogs out of the black market.

This matter of reduced hog production is typical of the whole livestock industry in a country which used to rely mainly on imported feeding stuffs that have not been available in quantity since 1939.

Farthings To Stay In British Coinage

LONDON.—A demand for the abolition of the farthing, small British coin with a value of about 1/16 of a cent, was raised in the House of Commons by Glenville Hall, financial secretary to the Treasury, because of its use for purchasing cheap basic items like meal and flour.

In Glenville's Conservative speech for abolition of the coin on the grounds that it had no monetary value, but Hall said farthings are being minted at the rate of 13,500,000 a year to meet the demands of banks. It still has monetary value, he said.

come words of praise

WHEN people are pleased it's natural for them to say "thank-you". But never, apparently, have any car owners been so pleased as those lucky enough to own a 1947 Chevrolet. Their enthusiastic "thank-you" letters stream in from every nook and cranny of the Dominion—from fleet operators and businessmen, from purchasers in every trade and occupation. And each letter says in a different way—"I know now from experience that Chevrolet's proud boast is true—only Chevrolet offers Big Car Quality at Low Cost!"

"The growing demand for the New Chevrolet is setting an all-time record. We cannot hope for many months to fill all the orders pouring in. If you are among the many who have set your sights on Chevrolet's Big Car Quality at Low Cost, we suggest that while you wait, you rely on your Chevrolet Dealer's service to keep your present car running smoothly and safely."
